

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A photochromic plastic object made of a transparent synthetic resin material composed of at least two mutually penetrating polymer networks of different polymer materials and containing at least one photochromic dye homogeneously distributed therein, and a method for producing such a photochromic object.